BACKGROUND

The development of an environmentally-sound forest industry becomes an obligation towards the sustainable forest and environment. The improvement of Indonesian forest industry as well as the revision of Indonesian government regulations in the field of sustainable forest management and wood products legality verification systems has enhanced the credibility and market values of Indonesia forest products, internationally. In order to decrease the dependency on wood forest products as well as to fulfill the needs of the development of products from renewable resources, the utilization of non-woody forest products should also be intensified. The Indonesian Wood Research Society (IWORS) answers to the challenge by conducting researches on forestry sectors and by organizing a seminar which becomes an effective tool to share and to exchange the knowledge and information related to forestry researches. The 2015 IWORS seminar will be held on November 5-6th in Bandung.
